

Making It Happen: Building Mathematicians in the Primary Classroom

June 30, 2016

8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. (CDT)

Workshop #125-16

GRREC Office & Training Facility • 230 Technology Way • Bowling Green 42101

About the Training:

Have you ever wondered how to juggle meeting the needs of every student in your math classroom? Making it happen can sometimes seem like a challenge. In this professional learning session, we will explore a process for making learning more meaningful for your students and a framework to help you manage the fun of math in your classroom. Hear from first grade teacher, Kate Wintuska, about her students' adventures in guided math. She will share what guided math looks like in her classroom including launching guided math, centers, math journals, and tools for building independence in young learners. You will receive a copy of Guided Math: A Framework for Mathematics Instruction by Laney Sammons.

Learning Targets:

At the end of this 6-hour session, participants will have a foundational understanding of the following:

- How to teach math conceptually
- How to build a classroom learning community
- How to manage differentiating instruction

Audience: Primary Teachers (K-2) and Special Education Teachers
